TUESDAY, JULY 24, 1956
1st Year, No. 1000

THE decision of the Histadrut to demand from employees an increase in the cost-of-living allowance was a difficult one to reach. The Histadrut and the Manufacturers' Association do not in fact require any increase at the present time for the rise in the cost-of-living index falls short by a small fraction of the requisite two per cent over the last six months or by three per cent since the last adjustment in the allowance.

Yet the index has increased by nearly three per cent — by the equivalent of 7.74 points of the old index which is only 0.13 points short of the 7.87-point rise that would automatically entitle employed persons to receive — and require the employers to pay — the wage increase in question. The Histadrut plainly feels that the workers' pay has lagged behind prices for too long; there is also the pressure of Moslems and Arabs in Haifa to consider. There are also indications that the rapid acceptance of the proposal by Mapai members of the Government indicates that things will be harder with such groups as the teachers, who seek general pay rises. On balance, this increase will cost less.

Without doubt, the new cost-of-living index of January 1955 loosened the link between wages and prices quite appreciably. Wages were to be adjusted every six months instead of every three months, and only if prices went up by almost three times as many points as were required under the former agreement. This meant that employees were prepared to tolerate a certain loss in their real wages in order to avoid pressing too closely on the inflationary spiral.

The monetary situation as reflected in the cost-of-living index has exploited this tolerance to the maximum, and it is understandable that the lowest-paid category of worker should claim compensation for higher prices. The rise has reduced their purchasing power by almost three per cent, and redress is being withheld on the (to them) academic ground that the rise is not a fraction of one per cent greater.

On the other hand, consumption per person has gone up by a good 50 per cent since 1950, and Mr. Becker has more than once spoken with pride of the steady increase in real wages. Histadrut leaders emphasized last week that the adaptation of wages to prices is needed primarily for those workers who have not secured adjustments in their wage-scales nor gone up in grade nor earned augmented premiums for productivity — unskilled workers, persons in temporary employment, workless settlers in the development area, townships that live on seasonal employment in agriculture and relief projects. For them the loss of IL5 or IL4 a month is a deprivation.

In the circumstances, it would be reasonable to mitigate inflationary tendencies by sharing the burden of price rises. If the cost-of-living index had gone up sufficiently to require an automatic payment of wage increases, there would be no disputing the obligation that all basic salaries up to IL500 a month be adapted upward in accordance with the wage contract.

As a humanitarian factor, the legal considerations have prevailed, however, the question may legitimately be asked whether these employees have not earned a betterment (throughly well-earned) in their salaries — at the expense of other elements in the economy — as the Histadrut would have them do. It is a question that will be asked again and again as the cost-of-living index continues to rise.

Industry Agrees To Discuss C-o-L

Jerusalem Post Labour Correspondent
TEL AVIV. — Less than 24 hours after declaring that it would refuse even to consider discussing the possibility of paying an additional cost-of-living allowance, the Israel Manufacturers' Association yesterday met on the public cost of the payment, estimated at IL400 million.

Further, the Treasury is thought to be dropping its opposition to paying an increase in the cost-of-living allowance on the understanding that the trade union movement will cooperate in increasing general wage increases. But asked to comment on press reports that the Histadrut had reached a secret agreement for a two-year wage-freeze in exchange for the Mapai Ministers' consent to its demanding payment of the allowance, Mr. Becker told the Association's press office: "Rubbish. Such press concoctions are not worthy of a detailed reply."

It is understood that the Histadrut will oppose passing on the public cost of the payment, estimated at IL400 million.

Mr. Becker officially informed Mr. Hausmann of the Histadrut's decision to demand payment of the allowance retroactive to July 15 and presented him with the Histadrut's calculations. Mr. Hausmann referred to Mr. Becker the Association's opposition to paying.

Mr. Hausmann said that the Histadrut would strongly oppose any changes in the present cost-of-living policy until the collective agreements with the country's employers run out in December.

The Mapai committee on education and teachers' salaries headed by the Prime Minister met on Monday in Jerusalem and heard Histadrut representatives reiterate their position on any concession from the findings of the Guri Committee. The Jerusalem Post learned last night.

Cairo Creates Storm Over Iran Ties with Israel

The Arab world was up in arms yesterday over what it claimed Iran's decision to extend diplomatic recognition to Israel.

Reeling themselves on a remark by the Shah at a press conference on Saturday to the effect that his Government had no intention of withdrawing its recognition of Israel, extended many years ago, the Arab League Council yesterday expressed its condemnation of "Iran's official recognition of Israel."

The eight ambassadorial delegates to the Council adopted a resolution urging their foreign ministers to adopt a similar stand towards Iran. The Ministers will give priority to discussing Iran's "unfriendly move" at a Council meeting in Beirut on August 25.

The U.A.R. yesterday instructed its Ambassador in Teheran to return home for consultations. The Cairo newspaper "Al-Ahram" said yesterday that the U.A.R. "took a very grave view" of the Shah's attitude, which "cannot be tolerated."

Turning to personal abuse of the Iranian monarch, "Al-Ahram" said he had "decided to recognize Israel as a step towards the West on the basis of the West's own policy of receiving more aid and then smugly these amounts in aid outside the country and have a share in the West's accounts with Swiss banks."

Another of the U.A.R. Government's newspapers, "Al-Akhabar," said the decision was "dictated by imperialism which acts as the Shah's bodyguard."

Pointing out that alone of the signatories of the Baghdad Pact, the U.A.R. had refused to recognize Israel as a ruler while Nuri Said was king and Adnan Menderes of Turkey had gone, the paper threatened: "However, the day of reckoning is not distant."

In Beirut, outgoing Premier Ahmad Dackoul told reporters that Lebanon would "possibly" take action to express their disapproval of Persia's recognition of Israel, which he said "upset him."

Soviets Reject U.S. Demand For Impartial RB-47 Inquiry

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters). — The U.S. yesterday rejected the Soviet version of the shooting down of the RB-47 north of Russia on July 1 and asked for an impartial investigation of the incident.

Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., told the Security Council that the U.S. "was not a party to the incident" and that the plane was shot down "as a result of a Soviet fighter pilot's error."

The Council adjourned until Tuesday morning. The body of the RB-47 pilot, Captain William Palm, was handed over to the U.S. Consul in Moscow early yesterday. The body was found in a rubber ducky after the RB-47 was shot down.

The U.S. honor guard was not allowed inside the ground of the mortuary, where the body was handed over to the U.S. Consul. The body was found in a rubber ducky after the RB-47 was shot down.

Debre Says Belgium Right to Send Army

PARIS (AP). — Premier Michel Debre, in a major foreign address at the closing session of the French National Assembly, said yesterday that Belgium was right in sending troops to aid but threatened settlers in the Congo.

He said Soviet charges of aggression by Belgium or other members of the Western alliance were "adventitious of the facts."

M. Debre said France would support the U.N. efforts in the Congo, although he expressed some reservations. He regretted that only a small number of U.N. troops came from elsewhere than African states.

The Premier reiterated President de Gaulle's demand for more consultations among the western powers.

"Peace is menaced in Asia; it is menaced in Africa; it is menaced in Europe," M. Debre said. "The West cannot be united here and divided there, or there will be no West much longer."

Lloyd: Belgians Should Stay Till It's Quiet
LONDON (Reuters). — Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said yesterday he thought Belgian troops should withdraw from areas where the U.N. had established law and order in the Congo, but not on the off-chance that they might be able to do so all over the country.

"I think they must wait for gradual restoration," he told the House of Commons. In regard to Katanga, Mr. Lloyd told a Labour questioner: "It is our hope that the Congo will remain a unitary state because of the wealth of Katanga and its importance to the development of the rest of the Congo."

"This is an internal matter and it would be a very grave mistake to encourage U.N. troops to try to solve it."

Bulawayo Mohs Wreck Shops

BULAWAYO, S. Rhodesia (Reuters). — Violence flared again in Bulawayo's African townships yesterday when gangs smashed up shops, beerhalls and cars and police used tear-gas and batons. Sounds of shooting were reported from one section and police cars raced off to investigate.

Disturbances began on Sunday with demonstrations against the banning of a National Democratic party meeting. This followed last week's clashes in Salisbury caused by the arrest of three leaders of the same party.

Yesterday, three-quarters of the African labour force went on strike, bringing the city to a standstill. Troops with fixed bayonets guarded the approaches and had to rescue the Mayor of Bulawayo when a crowd of Africans surrounded his dry-cleaning premises in the industrial area, shouting and gestulating.

Sir Edgar Whitehead, Premier of Southern Rhodesia, flew here from Salisbury and conferred immediately with police officers at security headquarters. He met an interview that drop announcements were on their way and "where the police were active steps will be taken."

Bombs Attack Clubs At Nyasaland Falls
LONDON (AP). — A conference aimed at restoring the future of troubled Nyasaland opened on a sour note here yesterday with a public clash between rival African leaders.

Dr. Hastings Banda, Nyasaland's premier, in the British-held territory, arrived on other chiefs representing the conference and charged they had never been elected to speak for Nyasaland's people.

The clash marked the formal opening session of the talks on Nyasaland, which came under a state of emergency early last year at the height of a nationalist movement. Dr. Banda and many other African nationalists were jailed at the time.
